SIMPLE, CHEAP, LOAD ROLLER THAT ANYBODY CAN MAKE

Boiler Shell Filled With Concrete at Cost of $50.

A most excellent road roller can be made by any one and so cheaply that the cost will not be of any consequence.

Purchase a boiler shell four feet six inches long and three feet nine inches in diameter. Set it up on end, put a shaft in the center and fill the shell with concrete.

Make a frame like

the one illustrated and you will have a five ton road roller at a cost of about $50.

A ROAD WASTE.

The appropriations made by the different states for improved roads have been wasted to a very large extent. New York has built about 650 miles of improved highways, Pennsylvania perhaps one-third as much. And neither state nor any other so far as we know has made proper provision for their maintenance.

Here is where the waste comes in. More millions will be wasted unless some plan of keeping the roads in repair is put into operation soon. No sense in building costly roads and then letting them go to pieces for the want of attention at the right time.

Where possible, the poultry raiser should begin at the top every time—that is, start with standard bred fowls in every case by using standard bred breeders of both sexes. If this can not be afforded—usually it can—then get standard bred males, and make a year.

The change that will be brought in the flock in twelve months will be enough to make anyone proud. The second year the offspring will look so much like their standard bred ancestors that it will begin to be hard to tell the birds of mixed breeding from those that are standard bred.

When a flock reaches this degree of excellence, it begins to be a very practical fowl for the farmer whose chief aim is to get a reasonable number of eggs and nice carcasses for selling and to have every lot of eggs and birds marketed grade evenly and consequently make that pleasant impression on the eye that makes good sales.

It so happens that after a poultry man starts with one breed of fowls he comes to the point of getting new blood by crossing with some other breed. Such violent crosses are unfortunate, since a common result is that the offspring do not develop the good qualities of their immediate ancestors so much as they do their bad qualities. The offspring looks too much like mongrels. Always get new blood by using birds of the same breed.

The experience of practical breeders have so repeatedly shown that these principles are correct that there is no use in listening to the free advice given by some one who is unable to tell whether a fowl is standard bred or not. Wide experience and many observations are necessary to formulate rules for breeding, and it is safer to follow the advice of those who have attained great success than it is to follow the advice of some one who has really never accomplished much.

With the crops practically housed and only the remnants to be gathered, there is now nothing to do but to fix up things generally and commence operations for next year's crop. One road way to begin is to sow rye, wherever possible, for grazing in the spring and for soil improvement. We want to plan to make larger yields per acre next year than we made this year, or last year either. The surest way to do this is to do better farming. Rye will hold much fertility that would be leached out of the soil by the winter rains and lost to us if there were no living plants to take it up. And when plowed under next spring, rye will give to the land, in addition to the stored fertility, humus which most of our lands stand so much in need of. It is late, of course, to sow rye, but this is one of the things about which it can be truthfully said: "Better late than never."

A dry floor well covered with litter keeps the hens contented when blizzards are raging outside, and it fills the egg basket when eggs were worth anywhere from 30 to 50 cents per dozen.

Change the feed lots often. It improves the land greatly and improves the hog more.—A. M. Worden.

It is claimed that fine pork can be made on alfalfa for one cent a pound.—A. M. Worden.

FREE ROAD DRAGS.

To encourage road work Roy Williams, highway engineer of Macon county, Mo., gives a road drag free to every farmer who makes application for one. If the farmer does not use his drag it is taken from him and given to some one more industrious. The roads of the county have been much improved by the arrangement.

BUYING BREEDING POULTRY.

Good Blood in Poultry Yard Is Not a Mere Whim, But a Money-Maker.

Breeding stock should be accustomed to their quarters before the breeding season opens. Those of our readers who have made up their minds to dispose of their old cocks should get them out of the way and replace them with new ones without much delay. The old ones will never taste much better than right now. A tough old bird can be made very palatable if put into a stew and cooked slowly long enough. If the old ones are not out of the way before the new ones arrive, the old ones will look upon the new ones as intruders, and fights will result that can serve no good end. If the new arrivals find no opponents they will accommodate themselves to conditions very quickly, and the flock will be ready to get results by the time eggs are wanted for hatching.

There can be no doubt about it, no doubt that those who are reading progressive farm papers will want to improve their flocks. If they do not this year, they will next or the year after. This thing of having good blood is no mere idle whim. It is a money-making proposition. The sooner good blood is got into the flock, the sooner will more pride be taken in the business and more profits taken out of it.

It requires so much money to stock up on both males and females for the larger classes of live stock that most farmers feel they can not afford it; but this is not the case with poultry. A good male and a small number of females can be got at a small outlay. If there are no other males on the place the new male can be used with the whole flock. This will give a few standard bred birds and many others that are not standard bred. If one desires to have some that are pure standard bred blood and to know which are pure blooded and which are not, it will be necessary to have a pen for the pure bloods. Usually pens for poultry on the farm should not be tolerated, but an exception might properly be made in a case of this kind.

Where possible, the poultry raiser should begin at the top every time—that is, start with standard bred fowls in every case by using standard bred breeders of both sexes. If this can not be afforded—usually it can—then get standard bred males, and make a year.

The change that will be brought in the flock in twelve months will be enough to make anyone proud. The second year the offspring will look so much like their standard bred ancestors that it will begin to be hard to tell the birds of mixed breeding from those that are standard bred.

Don't Suffer!

"I had been troubled, a little, for nearly 7 years," writes Mrs. L. Finch, in a letter from Peavy, Ala., "but I was not taken down, until March, when I went to bed and had to have a doctor. He did all he could for me, but I got no better. I hurt all over, and I could not rest. At last, I tried Cardui, and soon I began to improve. Now I am in very good health, and able to do all my housework."

TAKE The CARDUI Woman's Tonic

You may wonder why Cardui is so successful, after other remedies have failed. The answer is that Cardui is successful, because it is composed of scientific ingredients, that act curatively on the womanly system. It is a medicine for women, and for women only. It builds, strengthens, and restores weak and ailing women, to health and happiness.

If you suffer like Mrs. Finch did, take Cardui. It will surely do for you, what it did for her. At all druggists.

This country would do well to make the most of President Wilson, for our next president may be a presidentess.

WATCHES, it is pointed out, continue to decrease in price. But then a steady diet of watches falls on the appetite, and they are made so this nowadays that they do not keep the wearer warm.

In the ten states in which women have the full suffrage, politics will not be less uncertain than before, but the uncertainty will be more delightful.

TESTIMONY adduced in San Francisco showed that one of the express companies has been making only a beggarly 800 per cent profit. No wonder it hates to divide its modest business with the government.

THAT California woman who advises President Elect Wilson to have a woman in his cabinet does not consider that there will be four women right there in the white house running the family cabinet.

THERE is a further sting for Joseph G. Cannon in the affidavit of his successful opponent, Frank T. O'Hair, that the said O'Hair did not spend a cent for his election to congress. Each of the members of the new house is running and the old guard is all at sea.

An English paper is asking its readers: "What would you do with your last shilling?" Make it a quarter and frame the query in the past tense and we'll tell. But what would you do with your last quarter?

Address by Judge Reaster.

The Muhlenberg county School celebration took place last Friday, was one of the largest gatherings of people ever witnessed before in Greenville. After a grand march made by nearly two thousand children of the county thro' the streets, and after the band had played some beautiful tunes, Judge Reaster was called upon to make a talk. An outline of which we here give. Judge Reaster came forward before the immense mixed crowd, his voice was strong and clear and rang out distinctly over the crowd. He said in part:

"Ladies and Gentlemen of Muhlenberg county, I am proud this bright day to appear before you and to have the honor and the pleasure of talking to you mothers and fathers and to your children that you have brought here to rejoice with you on this grand occasion. Now I want to say that I am a stranger to most of you, having been born in a western state, reared upon a great prairie land and have not long been in your county and state, but I want to say that since I have come into your state that I have become attached to the people of your county and have determined to spend the remainder of my days upon the soil of Old Kentucky. Now I want to say to the many parents that I see here before me that this is one of the grandest occasions of your lives and of your County's history. This gathering is a manifestation and a demonstration of a grand move along the highways of life. You have left your homes in various parts of the county and have brought your children here to the county seat and I know that you are proud to do so, for they are the center of your love and affection and upon them rests your hopes and anticipations of life and you rejoice as their little tender hearts seem to leap with pride and exaltation in their neat uniforms and having the opportunity and privilege of marching in one of the grandest parades ever made in Greenville. I want to say that I have seen soldiers march, I have seen the various orders and lodges march, but as I stood today upon the sidewalk of the streets of Greenville I saw the grandest march that I have ever witnessed, an army of the innocents of Heaven marching to victory and to conquest in the great battle of life. As those sweet, tender and bright eyed girls and boys, some of them tiny in size, passed by me, their little hearts seemed to be filled with delight as they lifted up their juvenile voices in shouts of triumph, and you stood by with smiles of comfort and consolation. Let me say to you parents and teachers, the lesson that you have given these children today is worth days of schooling. You have taught them to rejoice and not to mourn. You have taught them to laugh and not to weep, you have made lasting impressions upon them. They have seen and heard things today that shall be indelibly written upon the tablets of their memory, that they can narrate in their advanced years. No doubt that some of them have never been in the county seat before and have never beheld this magnificent and beautiful court house, and perhaps have not witnessed the running of automobiles, the horseless carriage. Now I understand that the object of this occasion and this splendid demonstration is to encourage the intellectual and industrial progress of our county, and we think it to be one of the grandest movements ever made along such lines by the people of the county state and nation. We have reached that point in the scale of life that we can see the need of intellectual and industrial development, and for the first time in our county's history we find stored here in our temple of justice an exhibition of the fruits of the industrial genius of the youths and the young people of the county. You have put a premium upon the skill of industry that shall advance the productive interest of the county, of mental and manual training which is an absolute essential in life. Intellectual and industrial training are the principal cog in the wheel of progress, and many of our citizens and citizens of the world have seen and are encouraging it. Our government is using means for the encouragement and for the development of the natural resources of the states within its bounds. All the states are turning their attention to such work. New and more perfect methods of education are being exercised for the rising generation, and it is a pleasure to see our children crowned with the advantages that were unknown to the generation past. The battle of life never ceases, it is going on and these young people that are here today apparently in the rear will soon be in the front ranks leading up to the elevation of life and to the heights of educational success. Friends, our future is fast becoming gilded, its glorious opportunities, facilities and advantages; and the highway which our children shall travel is being decorated and charmed with the flowers of peace and perfection and the thorns that have jagged and vexed our ancestors and gave them trouble and hardships are fast falling away and soon they shall be feared and felt no more. My friends, I am so enthused and gladdened that I do not know how to properly talk to you, what to say first and to say last. I would that I was an orator and possessed the eloquence of a statesman and the inspiration of a prophet that I could more forcibly impress upon you the grandness and the importance of the intent and purpose of this occasion. Now I want to say to the boys and the young men that I see before me: You have commenced the battle of life, victory or defeat must be the consequences. Let me admonish you first, be virtuous and good, be brave and strong to meet the demands and the achievements of your lives and to withstand the obstacles and defeats that may confront you, and remember that mental and manual requirements and culture are the chief levers of life and its successes, and remember that this beautiful earth upon which you live is your mother and has long nourished her generations with her wonderful and variegated beauties. Sometimes I think that we do not properly appreciate the goodness and mercies of God. He has made us heirs to this splendid and beautiful world to live upon and he has supplied it with every adaptation and comfort necessary to make our lives happy and prosperous, and it is our duty to cherish and nourish the earth. The recklessness of former generations have greatly disfigured the beauty and destroyed the fertility of the earth; they have butchered and wasted much of its soil and it has gone down the rivers into the seas and barrenness is to be seen in many places. Now young men learn to assist the earth to yield her bounties, for our lives, our food and raiment depends upon the productions of the earth, and remember that labor and industry is the groundwork of all the grandeur and glory of the achievements of man. Our great cities, our railroads, the chattering wires and humming machinery are the product of the earth and labor, and remember that those that do not are drones without merit. To be useful to your selves and to your fellow man you must produce something. Now I see some babies here, the tender buds of life, reposing in the arms of young mothers, and these little ones may not realize the importance of the occasion, yet their little hearts seemed pleased to see the crowd of people and to hear the splendid strains of music that charms and enlivens the occasion. Mothers, today, some of you may be holding in your arms a son that may wave the rod of an empire. Parents, some of your children here today may become benefactors and be a blessing to their country and their race and be instrumental in the elevation and the promotion of the human family. Some of these little boys that are here rejoicing with you shall reach the highest position within the gift of the people of our state and nation, their eloquence and oratory may ring out in the halls of state and national legislative assemblies; some of them perhaps shall become professors of our highest literary and educational institutions, some of them may stand upon the shores of distant heathen lands and point a benighted people to the star in the east; a Governor and a President of this great nation may have marched thro' the streets of Greenville today. Mothers, you have daughters here today whose lives of chastity and purity shall make more noble the manhood of this country and shall lead men to higher stations of life and shall soften, sweeten and ameliorate the roughness of masculine nature. Some of your daughters may be sent of heaven and called from above to send the sunshine of life and immortality into the darkness of far off homes. Parents, the gems and jewels of your lives are here with you today. Some of your children that are here rejoicing with you may become unfortunate, disease may claim them for a prey and the pale countenance of the extinguisher of life may take them from your bosoms and from your homes, but you should strive to make them happy and to enjoy life; teach to be virtuous and live to die; persuade your children to make better men and women than you are, teach them to be studious and industrious and to be good, for in them your lives shall reflect after you shall have gone down in death; teach them to build up a noble posterity that shall glitter down the years of time and shall be an honor to your names. I see some old persons in this crowd; their heads have grown gray by the run of years and this demonstration and the advancement of their posterity is something new to them; their furrowed cheeks, today, are brightened by their smiles of gladness, altho their years have been spent under unfavorable circumstances and conditions, yet they rejoice to see their posterity moving upon the tide waves of a more perfect civilization. We hear those old people say with enthusiasm. "We never saw such things in our young days." Now I have detained you long enough. But in conclusion I want to say as I have already said, that this grand gathering of the school children of Muhlenberg county is the most wonderful that I have ever witnessed and why so. In this vast crowd of four or five thousand people mingling together, I have not heard a ripple of discord, I have not seen a frown of displeasure, I have not heard a murmur of dissatisfaction nor one heart no one showing signs of intoxication, nor of displeasing irritation. The time and scene has been both peaceful and tranquil, which always renders life happy. The demonstration of the gathering of people is beyond parallel in the history of our county and it should be yearly kept up. Let the children of the county meet once a year and rejoice in their triumphal march of life. In closing let me congratulate the promoters of this occasion on your noble success here today, and may this movement and this gathering have a good and lasting effect.

The Domestic Science Stove

THE recreation hours oftentimes teach valuable lessons. It is during these hours that things are done the easiest way, and thus you learn many labor saving methods good for every day use.

The electric grill not only adds ease to the fun of making fudge or coosiness to the impromptu luncheon, but it also teaches the most important lesson in domestic science—how to cook in the easiest, cleanest and least expensive way.

Anything you wish can be quickly cooked by it. You can grill, boil, fry, toast, stew and bake griddle cakes—all on the dining room table or on the little table in your own boudoir.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure

[From a series of elaborate chemical tests.]

Comparative digestibility of food made with different baking powders.

An equal quantity of bread (biscuit) was made with each of two kinds of baking powder—cream of tartar and alum—and submitted separately to the action of the digestive fluid, each for the same length of time.

Bread made with Royal Cream of Tartar Powder:

99 Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with alum powder:

67 Per Cent. Digested

Royal Baking Powder raised food is shown to be of greatly superior digestibility and healthfulness.

"Bob White" is without doubt the best flour on earth.

The School Fair and Corn Show drew the largest crowd to town last Friday that has ever been here.

SCHOOL FAIR

Held Here Last Friday, Was Phenomenal Success, and Inaugurates a New Order of Things.

There Were 2,000 School Children Among the 6,000 Attendants.

NEXT YEAR WILL BE MUCH LARGER

Muhlenberg had its first School Fair and Corn Show here last Friday. It was a great beginning, but small in comparison with such events that are sure to follow, for already plans are being perfected to make it annual event. School children from every section of the county, accompanied by teachers and parents, were here. There was considerable skill displayed in the decorations of the wagons, and many of the school children were dressed in uniform. By 9 o'clock the streets were lined with vehicles, and it was a question where to put the people. Mobilization was at the depot, and about 11:30 the children marched up town. There were 1,738 children in line, and their appearance and conduct were inspiring and impressive.

All available space in the court house was utilized for the display of specimens done by the children, and there were about 1,200 items exhibited, embracing manual training, domestic science, painting, drawing, needle work, invention, etc. All the displays were highly creditable, and some of them astonishing. Prof. McHenry Rhoades, who has visited many such fairs over the State, declares that this was the best that he had seen, and that the attendance was largest. A conservative estimate is that there were 6,000 people in town, one of the largest crowds in many years. Several hundred dollars in premiums were distributed among the contestants in the School Fair, and the smaller prizes for the best corn, but the larger prizes offered for the greatest yield of corn cannot be made until the gathering is completed, and the reports turned in.

It was almost impossible to get in or near the court house, so vast was the crowd that was anxious to view the displays. Every effort was made to assist the movement of the people, but congestions were continually occurring. Everyone was happy and good-natured though, and took the pulling and hauling with smiles. We consider this the most important enterprise that we have ever entertained, and next year will be in better shape for it, and add to the comfort and refreshment of all who attend.

Better get a hunting license if you are hunting. It is said that there will be considerable supervision over the matter of hunting now, and any man is liable to have his name turned in to the game warden, to see if he has a license.

Muhlenberg county now has a twice-a-week newspaper, "The Argus," at Central City, appearing in improved form last Friday, with its issues hereafter on Tuesday and Friday. The price of subscription has been increased to $1.50, and the paper will be strengthened along all lines.

Following the custom of many years, stores, shops, etc., will all be closed Thanksgiving day, proprietors, clerks, workmen all taking a day off.

Pleased Over Stock Law.

A former Muhlenberg farmer who moved some years ago to the West has written a letter to one of his old friends, and the whole of the epistle, almost, is in comment over our adoption of the stock law in one district. He praises this strong indication of progress and economy, and declares that it is one of the best indications for Muhlenberg that could have been made. He declares that he would have refused to vote for it, but that since he has lived under our new plan there is nothing that would cause him to go back to it, and that he would not live in a country where stock is allowed to run at large, as it costs more to keep up a farm, and even, with the best fences, that cattle and stock at large are dangerous. We believe our people will come to this way of thinking when they behold the workings of the new law, the improved appearance of farms when fences are removed.

Mr. H. P. Summers and wife were here the latter part of the week. Mr. Summers is editor of the Smith's Grove Times, and his wife is well known here, where she lived several years ago with her father, Rev. Frazier, who was circuit rider.

Mr. J. L. Rogers has purchased the old jailer's residence, and is having the building razed. The immense timbers are an astonishment to everyone. The upper part of the building was for a time used as a trellis, and in its day was as secure as the new one is now.

Now that the stock law has been passed in one magisterial district, there is strong talk of making it general over the county. It will come to that, for with one large block of the county closed against stock, nobody will feel inclined to turn his stock loose, as it may get into forbidden territory, and so cause trouble and expense.

Quail hunters have been fairly active, but with poor success. Mr. Trent Chatham bagged two dozen one day, which is the largest reported, and he declares that he doubts if he will be able to repeat the feat, as birds are very scarce.

Mr. Henry Lewis went to Louisville last Sunday, and accompanied his wife home; she has been at Norton Infirmary for some weeks, under treatment of a specialist, and is very greatly improved, and will soon be entirely well, it is hoped by her many friends.

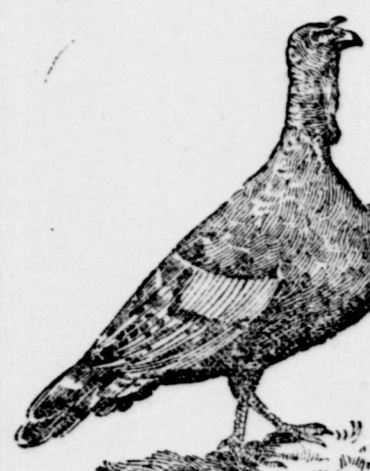

Mr. D. N. McDermott, of Elizabethtown, who is a guest of Mrs. H. E. Harper, is suffering from a fracture of the fibula, sustained as she stepped from a surrey Tuesday afternoon. In company with Mrs. Harper and some friends en route to Graham, the horse became fractious, and backed the vehicle against a bank. No one was injured, but in stepping from the vehicle Mrs. McDermott in some way strained the bone. The injury was treated at once, and the patient is getting along nicely at the home of Mr. Harper.

More than 525 hunters' license have been issued in this county this fall, and it is not likely that game to that much value will be killed, particularly after the other expenses are figured in. The man who is caught out hunting without his license will be in hard lines, as every man who has put up for a license will be a good game warden, as he will resent any "free hunting" by persons who will not put up for a license.

Go to Sam R. Martin's tonsorial parlor and bath house for an easy, close shave or an up to date hair cut; near the Max Weir corner; leading barber shop in town, assisted by two first-class workmen.

Miss Lena Arnold has a full supply of bulbs as follows: Hyacinths for pot culture, 10c. each; colors: light and dark blue, yellow, white, pink, bright scarlet. Hyacinths for bedding, 75c. per dozen, in same colors. Chinese lilies 15c. each; white Narcissus, 4c. per bulb or 35c. per dozen.

Mr. John B. Ferguson, who has been serving here as the representative for the Metropolitan Insurance Co., has been transferred to Central City in the same capacity, and will move with his family. We regret to lose these estimable people, who have been active in all movements for the betterment and up-build of the town.

Mrs. S. E. Rice Dies.

Mary Susan Grigsby, wife of Mr. S. E. Rice, died at their home here at 9:30 o'clock Monday morning, after an illness of some weeks from albuminuria, which for some days had been acute, and from which there had been no hope of relief. There were few more beloved women in the city, as her many Christian virtues endeared her to everyone. Deceased was a native of the county, and widely related. Rev. O. A. Barbee, her pastor conducted a service at the Cumberland Presbyterian church at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, and interment was made in Evergreen cemetery, a large audience attending both services. Messrs. John F. Green, R. T. Martin, C. M. Howard, Wm. Lovell, L. Z. Kirkpatrick and J. H. Pittman were the pallbearers. Her husband and children have the deepest sympathy of a wide circle of friends.

The W. C. T. U. will serve its annual Thanksgiving dinner at the poor farm next Wednesday, and will be glad to have offerings.

Miss Nannie Mason Dead.

Miss Nannie Mason, aged 75 years, died Tuesday morning at the Sacred Heart Home, Sisters of Mercy, in Louisville, where she has lived since the death of her step-father, Maj. Gen. Don Carlos Buell, at Paradise, in November, 1893. Miss Mason was well known in this county, where she lived for many years, and had many friends here. Burial will be in St. Louis to day, beside her mother and step-father. Her father was the first governor of California.

Everybody takes it for granted that the School Fair is a fixture, and some of our progressive business and professional men are so enthusiastic that they are discussing the erection of a building to be used for the displays each year, and of course for other suitable purposes.

Central City is a great little entertainer. She has baseball games, street fairs, reunions, homecomings, election celebrations, etc. The people of the county are invited—and they accept. Muhlenberg has had its first School Fair. Central City was invited to join in the movement, and it was conspicuous—by its absence. To thoughtful and observant persons it appears that Central City wants to do all the entertaining, at so much per. Our neighbor is the largest town in the county; it should be large enough to lend itself to every county enterprise, and liberally enough to get outside of town.

Powderly.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Mercer visited the former's parents Sunday.

Mrs. Rhone Harris from Nashville, Tenn., is making an extended visit to relatives here and in her old home town South Carrollton.

Miss Victoria Clemons, one of our most popular girls, has accepted a position at the R. Martin store at Greenville.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Herndon from Russellville recently moved to this place where they are welcome additions.

Miss Cordie Nicols from Greenville is the guest of Miss Ida Clements.

Miss Mildred Allen from Greenville was entertained a few days last week by Miss Maunie Heltsley.

The teachers of the Greenville High School were entertained at dinner Saturday by Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Frazier at their country home: a delightful day was spent in rambling over the farm and some interesting pictures were made.

ROAD & FARM IMPROVEMENT.

IRRIGATING MACHINE.
A Novel Device for Elevating Water from Streams and Discharging It on Higher Land.

It is becoming more and more apparent that irrigation is destined to have a larger place in the agriculture of the humid portion of the United States than a few years ago. It was thought possible. Market gardeners around all the large cities of the country are coming to realize the profit and security from drought which it brings, while the development of the arid west by irrigation is soon to occupy a place in the affairs of the nation, being already under investigation by the department of agriculture. The solution of the problem of irrigation rests largely in the quantity of water available and ability to direct it about the land at low cost. David Hutton, of Quartette, Nev., has designed a novel machine for elevating water from streams and discharging it on higher land, the apparatus working automatically and without cost, after the installation of the plant, which is itself inexpensive. In the illustration is shown a machine in operation. It consists of a frame resting on the bank of the stream, supported either by its own weight or anchored to piles driven in the earth, with a shaft pivoted at an angle of 45 degrees to support a series of buckets, revolving between the stream and the discharge trough on the frame. The buckets are mounted on arms radiating from the shaft, and besides each bucket is a broad paddle blade which dips into the water as the lowest point is reached, the action of the current revolving the shaft and elevating the buckets in turn to the highest point of revolution, where they are tilted automatically to discharge their contents into the trough. Though the strength of the current be small, the quantity of water elevated will yet be large, as the flow is regular and unceasing. — St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

LIFTING WATER FROM STREAM

What might be called a school on wheels is being sent by the government through the southern states, with a corps of teachers on board, and a quantity of material to help illustrate with object lessons the instruction given to the people along the route. This traveling educational enterprise occupies a train of a dozen cars, two of which are fitted up in hotel fashion for the accommodation of the staff of instructors and their assistants, while the other vehicles are flat cars loaded with an extraordinary variety of ponderous machinery. In fact, such a weighty and elaborate outfit for school purposes was never seen before in the world; and as the caravan moves along through the sunny southland the inhabitants may well be astonished. It is like a circus without the animals—a comparison by no means intended to be disrespectful, inasmuch as the affair is in reality of very serious importance and practical value, being designed for the purpose of encouraging the movement in behalf of good roads.

This peripatetic school is organized somewhat on the model of a kindergarten. All the people along the route who will come and be taught are its pupils, and classes run from 500 to 5,000 in number. At each stopping place lessons are given in the art of building roads, from half a mile to a mile and a half of first-class dirt road, gravel road or stone road being constructed. The kind chosen depends on the material at hand; if the stuff is available, a sample of each is built. There could be no more simple and effective means for conveying substantial and practical information.

The "good roads train," as the traveling school is called, is run by the National Good Roads association, with the help of Uncle Sam. Director Dodge, of the government road inquiry office, is head teacher, and his chief assistant is Mr. M. O. Eldridge. Several engineers, specially trained in the business, accompany the expedition, and there are about a dozen expert workmen to perform the actual labor in the construction of the sample bits of road.

The amount and variety of machinery taken along is surprising. On the flat cars are carried road grading machines, rock crushing outfits (including elevators, separating screens and bins); steam rollers, horse rollers, traction engines, wheel scrapers and plows. The plows and wheel scrapers are used in the preparation of grades, for redressing hills and filling hollows. The traction engines are for running the crushers, hauling stone and drawing the plows and road machines. The road machines are for rounding up the earth foundation, and the rollers are employed to consolidate the material — Pearson's Magazine.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific nerve sickness—indigestion.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop to the creation of that now very popular stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that stomach and liver to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend.
